PREFACE.

A WORK of this kind needs no introduction to Eton men, except for the opportunity it offers of thanking those who have kindly assisted me, and of correcting one or two misapprehensions as to the purpose of it.

My object has been, not to attempt anything like Biographical Notices, but simply to show who each Boy was, and what became of him, and at the same time to retain as nearly as possible the old familiar look of the common School Lists. The great names of Eton are known to every one, and their "Lives" have been written already. Others who have finished their course here are to be found in the Gentleman's Magazine, the Annual Register, and other similar works. A reference to these may be assisted by the date of death, which I have given where I could, and Sir Bernard Burke's "Landed Gentry" and Mr. Walford's "County Families" will supply further information about some of the living.

But there still remain many not so well known in the world, who have imbibed equal excellencies from our common Mother, ETON, and are just as useful and estimable in their way; but have no "Vates sacer" to record their virtues. Such men indeed deserve a longer memoir than my limited space would allow, but it is for the "own familiar friend" of each, and not for a stranger, to tread on such delicate ground.

Most Eton men, old or young, have a vivid impression of their boyish days, and their school "Cons." Some of these early friends have run through life together; some have become connected by marriage or in business; but by far the larger number, and frequently the most intimate, of our friends at School,—fellows we have “messed with,” or who have shared our “lock-up,” or who have “kept” one of the Football or Cricket Clubs with us, or been “next to us in School,”—have dropped out of sight altogether. How many have died young! Many have gone to distant countries; but there may still be many close around us, whom we do not recognize, because our course in after-life has led in a different direction.

A common School List, with its columns of bare Surnames, is full of pleasant memories. We may recall a more or less distinct recollection of every one in our own part of the School, of their nicknames, their character, and appearance; but the link between the past and present is wanting. Christian names were usually put by in the Head-Master’s “Entry List” on going to school, and only taken out occasionally to be inscribed in a “Leaving Book.” And in the “Miniature Republic” precedence was guided more by a Boy’s position in School, or his prowess on the River or in the Playing-fields, than by the social position he was heir to.

It is hoped this attempt to identify these Boy-Heroes with men of maturer years may be not without interest, although it is impossible it should be free from a great many errors and imperfections.

The Christian names have been obtained from the School Entry Lists, kindly lent by the Provost, and may therefore be relied on as generally correct; but the great variety of sources from which information has been obtained, and that sometimes of a conflicting character and not easy to verify, has made it a very difficult matter to ensure accuracy. I shall be glad to receive any additions or corrections that any gentleman may send me.

To avoid needless repetition, only every third year’s List has been printed, and the Montem years have been chosen because those years were perhaps a little more memorable. The series begins with 1791, as the paper “Rolls,” or manuscript Lists, which had been previously in use, were then for the first time put in print.

Those names, which, under this arrangement, would have dropped out between these triennial periods, have been collected from the Head-Masters' Books, and placed in "Intermediate Lists," in the order of their admission to the School.

A List of the Provosts and Fellows, Masters and Assistant Masters, will be found at the beginning. It had been my wish to have added the "Select" for the Newcastle Scholarship, the "Eight," and the "Eleven," of each year. All my efforts to obtain any Lists of the "Select" have been unsuccessful; and I am therefore obliged to be content with the Boat's Crews and Elevens.

There remains only the pleasing duty of recording my warmest acknowledgments to all (and the number is very considerable) who have helped me in these "Notes." The unvarying kindness I have received from every one I have applied to for information, has been a source of much pleasure to myself, and amply proves, if proof were needed, that there still exist that freemasonry and good-fellowship among all Etonians, of whatever age or rank, which has always been one of the most agreeable characteristics of the School.

PREFACE.

AN APPENDIX needs no Introduction, but I am glad to have an opportunity of thanking my numerous correspondents. How numerous they have been is attested by the large bundles of letters which lie before me. Many of them, I know, have taken a great deal of trouble in making enquiries for me among their friends. My acknowledgments are also due to Mr. EDWARD WALFORD, the Author of "County Families," and to the Editors of "Debrett's Peerage" and "Kelly's Handbook."

I am still glad to receive any corrections or additions, either for this work or the previous parts. Any such information will be carefully recorded and preserved.
